AIA Contract Document Order Form

Revised July 2009

AIA Contract Documents Benefit You and the Industry
The documents produced by The American Institute of Architects are the most widely used Standard form contracts in the construction industry.

AIA contract documents are fair. In its contract documents, the AIA seeks to reflect an industry consensus, obtained from the advice of practicing architects, contractors, engineers, owners, surety bond producers, insurers, and attorneys. AIA contract documents balance the interests of all the parties. This ensures a fair distribution of rights and duties without bias toward any one party, including the architect.

AIA contract documents reflect industry practices, not theory. Where practices are inconsistent or no guidelines for practice exist, the AIA contract documents provide a consensus-based model for practitioners to follow.

AIA contract documents reflect changing construction practices and technology. They are regularly revised to accommodate changes in professional and industry practices, and technology.

AIA contract documents reflect changes in the law. They are revised and updated to conform to evolving case law precedence and indemnity Insurance.

AIA Contract documents are flexible. They are easily modified to accommodate individual project demands. Such changes can be easily distinguished from the original, printed language.

AIA contract documents are easy to interpret. They use common words & phrases. Industry & legal jargon is avoided whenever possible.
